What is ReadBoston?

Launched by Mayor Menino and concerned citizens in 1995 to address problems in early childhood literacy, ReadBoston was given a directive to ensure that all Boston children are able readers by the time they complete third grade.

To achieve this goal, ReadBoston pursues four core strategies:

1. Foster partnerships that strengthen the ties between Boston families, community organizations, childcare providers, and schools;
2. Document and encourage effective early literacy practices wherever they are in use, and aid in their dissemination throughout Boston;
3. Mobilize and share resources – in technical support and training, in publicity, in funding;
4. Act as a citywide leader for Boston's early literacy efforts, promoting public awareness of the issues and coordinating programming.

Third grade was chosen as the standard because until third grade a child learns to read; after the third grade a child reads to learn. Children who can read on grade level by the time they enter fourth grade are likely to continue to experience educational success, graduate from high school, secure post-secondary education, and enjoy higher levels of professional challenge and financial security.

EARLY CHILDHOOD PROGRAMS

Early Literacy Links: Recognizing that literacy begins at birth, ReadBoston has begun a major initiative with early childhood educators. Four ReadBoston literacy specialists work intensely with home visiting programs, childcare centers and family providers to help them develop literacy rich environments in classrooms and at home. A children's librarian is developing a permanent rotating book collection that will serve over 100 centers at a time.

Reading Trail: A family-focused home reading program, the Reading Trail enables families with children in early childcare to borrow books in order to share the joy of reading at home. Incorporated into over 100 sites, the Reading Trail has reached over 10,000 children to date. At those sites, many of the parents and childcare educators have participated in ReadBoston's workshops on early literacy development.

SCHOOL BASED PROGRAMS

Family Literacy Project: Providing classroom lending libraries and technical assistance to 24 elementary schools in Boston, the Family Literacy Project reaches close to 8,200 students. As part of the program, ReadBoston requires all teachers at partner schools to host twice-yearly, parent-teacher conferences focused on the student's literacy development. To date, more than 80% of parents have attended these conferences, and report that they spend more time reading with their children now than before the program was incorporated into their children's classrooms.

Reading Is Fundamental: ReadBoston, in partnership with the Boston Public Schools, distributed 45,000 books to elementary school students during the 2001-2002 school year. The RIF program provides 15,000 students in 40 schools with three free books each school year. These books are distributed at literacy events designed to promote books and reading as a fun activity.

COMMUNITY BASED PROGRAMS

Out of School Time: Our Out of School Time Literacy Specialists work with the Boston Community Learning Centers to enhance literacy programming. We provide a literacy assessment, ongoing staff training, program development, and literacy curriculum. The focus of staff training varies and can include: creating a print-rich environment, choosing multicultural literature, developing fun writing activities, and infusing literacy into all aspects of a program. Out-of-School Time Programs are invited to attend ReadBoston's annual After-School Literacy Kit Workshop to learn more about infusing literacy into their programs.

Families And Books: Reaching families in 27 of Boston's homeless shelters, the Families And Books program provides literacy resources to over 400 children. Each participating shelter is provided with a lending library from which the families are encouraged to regularly check-out books. ReadBoston also works in conjunction with volunteer groups to encourage additional literacy activities while volunteers visit the shelters.

Storymobile: For six weeks each summer the ReadBoston Storymobiles travel to summer programs and camps, providing 10,000 children with entertaining stories and books to take home. The goal of the program is to infuse literacy activities into summer programs for Boston's children, providing avenues for learning during times when children are away from school classrooms. Now in its seventh year, the Storymobile has been a highly visible program in Boston's neighborhoods and will continue to be so in the future.

Youth Opportunity (YO) Boston is a 5-year project designed to empower and motivate young people so they may gain the education, employment and career advancement to be successful in the workplace, in the community and in their lives. From its two sites, the YO offers comprehensive services to youth between the ages of 14 and 21 who reside in Boston's Empowerment Zone.

A partnership of educators, law enforcement officials, and business and community leaders has come together to maximize the services necessary for the growth and success of Boston's young people.

At the new 12,000 square foot, state-of-the-art, YO headquarters in Dudley Square, satellite office in South Boston, youth have access to the following activities:

- ✓ Transitional Employment Service: a nationally recognized job readiness training, combined with structured community service experience, which helps young people develop new skills and attitudes. Placement in private sector employment is the goal for participants.

- ✓ Youth Development: services ranging from homework help and tutoring to play station tournaments ... from support groups to art classes ... from college prep to a digital recording studio ... from computer labs to producing a weekly informational TV show.
- ✓ Education: construction and technology career pathways through Boston Public Schools' school-within-a-school at Dorchester High School and placement in alternative education classes.
- ✓ Case Management: professional staff provides counseling, support and guidance.

Boston's One-Stop Career Centers offer a comprehensive range of services to assist any job seeker through individualized services, access to state-of-the-art resource libraries, and workshops.

The Career Centers have staff and other resources to assist job seekers in attaining their personal goals. They can help a person who is looking for a first job; has lost a job to downsizing or plant closing; is hoping to get a better job; or is thinking about how to improve his/her skills to be eligible for other employment. Career Center customers who have significant barriers to employment or reemployment may qualify for vocational training.

There are currently more than 250 individual training courses, covering a wide range of industries and skill areas, an eligible customer can access. After a discussion with a Career Center Counselor, eligible customers seeking vocational training are assigned an Individual Training Account voucher which covers all or most of the costs of the training program they have selected as best meeting the customer's needs.

Career Centers provide services to employers by screening, assessing and referring qualified candidates for job openings. The Career Centers also host job fairs and other employment related activities.

What is WriteBoston?

WriteBoston is an exciting citywide initiative mobilizing schools, families, and community agencies to improve writing proficiency among Boston middle and high school students. The three schools currently partnering with WriteBoston are the McCormack Middle School, Odyssey High School at South Boston, and Boston Community Leadership Academy.

A public/private partnership led by the Mayor, WriteBoston has the following goals:

- To elevate public awareness about the importance of writing and its critical link to school and work success;
- To improve the quality of writing instruction in middle schools and high schools and the quality of writing support and enrichment in in-school, after-school, youth employment and summer programs;
- To provide families and community members with concrete strategies for assisting students with writing that are closely aligned with and reinforce school and after school efforts.

While working closely with Boston Public Schools, WriteBoston strives to energize both teachers and their students in order to create a positive attitude toward writing both in and outside of the classroom environment. Programs and approaches designed by WriteBoston utilize writing coaches to establish demonstration classrooms, encourage effective teacher collaboration, design authentic writing opportunities, and develop after-school programs promoting and improving students' writing skills.

WriteBoston is especially excited to demonstrate to young people that writing is an integral and essential part of life. In order to reach this goal, WriteBoston builds special relationships with authors and other professionals who use writing in both their professional and personal lives. Through these relationships, WriteBoston hopes to improve the participating students' volume of writing, the quality of their writing, and their attitude toward writing as an important skill and an effective means of communication and expression.
